

Atlanta-based Diminished Value of Georgia Voted Best of 2015 on Kudzu

Car appraisal company earns award for the fourth year in a row.

New York, NY (PRWEB) February 22, 2016 -- Diminished Value of Georgia, Atlanta's leading vehicle appraisal company was awarded Best of 2015 by Kudzu, a leading online directory that ranks businesses based on user reviews. This is the fourth consecutive year that the company has received this top honor from Kudzu.

Diminished Value of Georgia is an independent car appraisal company specializing in loss-in-value claims. Its customers range in size from individuals seeking appraisals for their personal vehicles to attorneys and insurance companies.

Owners of vehicles that have been damaged by an accident or incident (such as fire or flood) are entitled to reimbursement for the loss in value their vehicles sustained. Frequently, insurance companies largely underestimate this loss, referred to as diminished value, because they use a percentage-based formula that consistently yields values that are significantly lower than the actual loss amounts.

Automobile owners who have suffered an accident should order an accurate and credible vehicle appraisal report to serve as proof-of-loss to insurance companies in order to collect what they are rightfully owed.

In 2015, DVGA helped its customers achieve millions of dollars in insurance settlement increases. "Most of our vehicle appraisal amounts are between two and three thousand dollars, which is considerably more than the average two to three hundred dollars offered by the insurance companies," said Tony Rached, owner of Diminished Value of Georgia. "Our appraisals are the most effective way for car accident victims to receive what they are lawfully owed."

For four consecutive years, DVGA has received the highest ranking on Kudzu for appraisal companies in Atlanta and surrounding areas. Reviewers offer overwhelmingly positive comments about the business, noting how helpful and knowledgeable the employees are.

"The only positive experience to come out of my wreck was working with Diminished Value of Georgia," noted Kudzu reviewer scraps64, who gave the business five stars. "They were extremely professional and thorough, laying out my options and providing wise counsel throughout the process. They were very proactive in working with the repair shop to monitor progress and schedule the inspection, and I appreciated their guidance in how to communicate with the other driver's insurance company. All in all, I was very satisfied as I received more than twice the original offer. If you have an accident, I absolutely recommend calling Diminished Value of Georgia!"

In addition to the Kudzu awards and five-star ratings, Diminished Value of Georgia has received an "A" grade by the Better Business Bureau and consistently ranks number one in the state of Georgia on Angie's List in the auto appraisal category.

DVGA offers an interactive website that includes resources to help educate consumers about diminished value, including a diminished value calculator, which assists customers in determining how much money they may be entitled to for the loss in value of their automobile.
