Industry experts will address and discuss many relevant, on-board diagnostics technology topics at the SAE 2016 On-Board Diagnostics Symposium – Europe, to be held Feb. 29-March 2, in Stuttgart, Germany.

WARRENDALE, Pa. (PRWEB) October 30, 2015 -- Industry experts will address and discuss many relevant, on-board diagnostics technology topics at the SAE 2016 On-Board Diagnostics Symposium – Europe, to be held Feb. 29-March 2, in Stuttgart, Germany.

This symposium will address the automotive engineering technical standards, processes and techniques necessary to comply with associated CARB, EPA, and European Commission regulations. A wide range of subject matter experts from the OBD world, including legislators such as Mike Regenfuss of the California Air Resources Board (CARB), will speak at this event. These presenters will provide information pertaining to the latest regulations and how these impact OEMs, suppliers, and other industry professionals. In addition, this event also allows time for interfacing, group networking, and personal discussions with leading international OBD practitioners.

“Call for Presentations” - SAE International is seeking professionals to providing experience and expertise in OBD technologies, regulations and standards for the symposium's technical sessions. Potential presenters are invited to submit presentations, including the title and author's contact information, by: December 31, 2015. Abstracts should be submitted to Brandie.Schandelmeier\(at\)sae\(dot\)orgsae(dot)org) for consideration into the program.

The SAE 2016 On-Board Diagnostics Symposium-Europe will be presented in English – including all technical sessions, keynotes, and materials. On-site translation is not scheduled for this event.
