

Streetrod Stuff Cruises onto the Scene

(PRWEB) January 5, 2000 -- One of the first "dot coms" of the new millenium is www.streetrodstuff.com.

Streetrod Stuff is an all-inclusive site for the classic car and streetrodding enthusiast. Features include a growing number of high quality products, the Fuzzy Dice Roundtable, original articles, a gallery for original artwork and reader's rides, the web's only hotrod magazine back issue database, a calender of upcoming events, and a weekly poll.

"We feel that we have something here for everyone", says SRS Webmaster Jason Long. "Folks that have seen a sneak preview of the site have been very excited and felt there was enormous potential. People will be especially excited about the Fuzzy Dice Roundtable, the magazine database, and the reader's rides sections. The Roundtable is a great forum for interacting with other streetrodding enthusiasts from all over the world. The technology put into the magazine database and reader's rides section is truely state-of-the-art."

On the e-commerce front, SRS co-founder Robert Zakrzewski adds, "Our aim is to treat every order as if it were that customer's first online transaction. If they have a bad first experience, the whole e-commerce industry takes a hit."

Content specialist, Christopher Zakrzewski, and chief founder, Dick Zakrzewski sum it best stating simply, "It's going to be awesome!".

Contact Information

Jason Long

Streetrod Stuff, Inc.

Online Web 2.0 Version

You can read the online version of this press release here.