Internet company launches new website selling Auto Banners,custom auto decals.

AutoBanners.com offers free directory listings to web designers,developers, ISPs and hosting companies.

Liberty, MO--CyberSingle Promotions, LLC., creator of Bumper Bait bumper stickers, announced today the launch of their new business-to-business website, AutoBanners.com.

The site offers Auto Banners, a new promotional tool for website owners. Auto Banners are auto decals that are customized with a URL, an email address, a company's name, or slogan. Each Auto Banner is made in one piece, unlike other types of vinyl lettering, so they are very easy to apply. They come in a variety of bright colors and styles.

According to Co-founder, Julie Harned, "Auto Banners were designed to help e-companies get their URLs out there in front of the public. We recognized the need for this product shortly after we began offering Bumper Bait bumper stickers to singles. Website owners began contacting us expressing interest in decals that could be used to promote websites. AutoBanners.com is a natural expansion to meet the needs of our customers."

The new website is colorful, compact and user-friendly. It loads easily without any annoying delays. The online ordering process is simple to use and provides maximum security for customers placing credit card orders. Customers can also order by fax at (816)415-4496, by mail-in order form, or by calling the CyberSingle Promotions sales department at (816)415-3574.

The website also features well-organized and easy-to-navigate links to helpful resources for Internet entrepreneurs, including a directory of web service providers listed by state and country. The directory serves two purposes: it provides useful information to AutoBanners.com customers and it gives meaningful exposure to other related but not directly competitive businesses in exchange for reciprocal links, an important part of the marketing strategy for AutoBanners.com.

Says Co-founder Carol Smasal, "AutoBanners.com customers are looking for cost-effective ways to build, maintain and promote their websites. Contact information for freelance web developers and small design firms, especially those not listed in the phone book, will be a valuable resource for them. We encourage directory submissions from all web designers, even if they are currently unable to reciprocate because they don't have their own website."

Harned and Smasal have been encouraged by the good will shared between owners of Internet businesses. As Bill Micke (websites: websitecreations.net and website-submit.com), a web developer who recently exchanged links with AutoBanners.com, expressed in his email to Smasal, "I appreciate your willingness to trade links. In my few years working on the web, I have found a great willingness for companies to help each other achieve their goals. This is unusual in the business world, and one of the best things about this business."

AutoBanners.com is owned and operated by CyberSingle Promotions, LLC., located at 40 Cherry, Liberty, MO 64068.
