

Texas two letter official license plate auction closes Thursday 25, February 2016

My Plates is offering twenty unique two-letter license plate messages to the market via an online auction. The auction closes February 25, 2016. The winners of each two-letter plate keep the message for a full 5 years with first right to renew. They also receive full rights to transfer/sell the plate message to another person, which is only available when plates are purchased via auction.

Austin, TX (PRWEB) February 21, 2016 -- 21 February 2016 (Austin, TX) – My Plates has opened their latest online auction, making available 20 new official Texas license plate messages. All of the plate messages are truly unique and far different from the every-day general issue random license plate messages. The plate messages being auctioned all feature only two letters.

With only two letters, all are easy to remember! There is a broad selection on offer like repeating letter messages including JJ & QQ, plus abbreviations like FB for Facebook or TV for television.

Other notable messages include: ET, AV, BE, DQ, HY, I.E, LV, NA, SP & UC.

The winning bidders will own each plate for 5 years, with first dibs on renewing it at the state's everyday pricing. That means once the message is won at auction, it could be gone forever!

Unlike other Texas license plates, plates sold by My Plates at auction are legally transferable. The plate owner then has the right to sell the plate message to another person with the same ongoing rights or gift it to a family member or friend. Transferability also means these plates could make great investments. A participant who won three of the plates in Round One of the Two-Letter Auction held in January, including one message for which he paid $3100 for, stated “The Two-Letter plates do present an intriguing investment. I plan to hold on to the plates, and at a later time re-sell for a profit”.

As to what these plates will go for, Texans should register at www.myplates.com/auction to find out. In a 2015 auction, the two-character plate message F1 went for $4,300, whereas SA sold for only $750.

My Plates is also releasing for auction the one, and only, plate message ALAMO. The auction for ALAMO will open February 23, 2016 at 8am and close on March 6th at 8pm. Proceeds from the auction sale will benefit both the Alamo Endowment Fund and the state General Revenue Fund, therefore benefitting this cherished shrine of Texas liberty, and all the citizens of the State of Texas.
