Greenfield Insurance Group in Orange City, FL announces a new fundraising campaign on behalf of a local Firefighter Paramedic who was run over while rendering assistance to the victim of a deadly assault. Caroline Dorton, mother of three, faces a very long road to recovery with rapidly mounting medical bills.

Orange City, FL (PRWEB) June 03, 2016 -- Greenfield Insurance Group has unveiled the latest charity campaign in their ongoing community enrichment program which serves the families of greater Orange City, FL. Caroline Dorton, a local Firefighter Paramedic, sustained serious injuries when she was run over in her off-duty hours while rendering aid to the victim of a deadly assault. Facing a long road to recovery and rapidly escalating medical bills, contributions from the compassionate community are now being accepted at: <https://www.gofundme.com/2hy3yjxg>.

Caroline Dorton embodies selfless community service every day of her life, working with the Orange City Fire Department for almost 10 years, teaching CPR at Daytona State College and, in years prior, serving as a volunteer with the Volusia County Fire Department. While recently enjoying an evening out, Caroline heard cries for help from a stranger on the street. With no regard for her own safety, she and another diner ran out of the restaurant to help. As Caroline's paramedic training kicked in to help, the attacker ran all three people over while fleeing the scene of the crime. Caroline, believed to have taken most of the car's impact, sustained quite severe injuries. As the mother of three, being out of work and requiring on-going medical care puts her family in grave financial distress.

“We passionately believe in folks rallying to help others in their most difficult times,” said Teresa Greenfield, owner of Greenfield Insurance Group. “We feel honored to support this brave and dedicated public servant in any way possible, and our hearts and prayers are with Caroline and her family. Our whole team wishes this bona fide local hero a swift return to health.”

Greenfield Insurance marches on to ensure customers, friends, family and neighbors are always in good hands, utilizing its own resources and seeking the help of its vast network of customers and business partners to garner support for its Community Program. Social media and an email awareness campaign will be used to help the agency's caring team to spread the word about the campaign for Caroline and her family. They have also featured the cause in their monthly magazine, Our Hometown, which is delivered to thousands of households in the Orange City metro area. The electronic Flipbook version of the current issue may be viewed here: http://greenfieldins.com/Our-Hometown-Magazine\_41.

Putting their money where their mouth is, Greenfield Insurance has pledged to donate $10 to the campaign for each and every recommendation they receive for an insurance quote, with no purchase necessary, making it very simple for everyone to pitch in to help Caroline. Readers who would like to view the campaign, recommend friends and/or make a personal donation may do so here: http://greenfieldins.com/Helping-A-Local-Hero-Heal\_16\_community\_cause.

The agency recently launched their master charity program, promising to choose a new local organization, family or person every two months to receive support.
