

Ray Brandt Infiniti Announces New Model Infiniti QX30

The new QX30 Infiniti model, now available from Ray Brandt Infiniti, is a premium compact utility vehicle offering the latest in safety technology.

METAIRIE, La. (PRWEB) April 27, 2016 -- Ray Brandt Infiniti announces the impending release of a luxury automobile that sets itself apart from other Infiniti cars. The 2017 Infiniti QX30 will be available for purchase in the summer or fall of 2016.

A versatile crossover utility vehicle, the QX30 offers all the advanced technology, styling and features that consumers demand. The seats are specially designed to conform to occupants for unsurpassed driving and riding comfort, and the sculpted exterior gives the automobile a sleek appearance.

The professional team at Ray Brandt Infiniti is excited about this and the other Infiniti models offered in their showroom. "Everything about the Infiniti QX30 is bold and energetic," said the Infiniti dealer's general manager, Thomas Melady. "We are excited to help drivers experience this advanced technology and the progressive designs of the Infiniti."

As a crossover, the Infiniti QX30 succeeds in stepping up from a compact size while avoiding some of the typical constructions of larger crossover cars. It offers enhanced safety and engineering features that will assist drivers behind the wheel. For example, Intelligent Park Assist helps drivers select an optimal parking space, and then, with the touch of a button, it glides the QX30 into the space via either parallel or reverse-in maneuvering. Additionally, an InTouch Infotainment system puts controls at the driver's fingertips with a sizable seven-inch touch screen. It's even possible to manage components hands-free with the Infiniti Voice Recognition system.
