

Moving Authority Launches Their Search by State Tool That Now Offers Listings in all 50 States

Moving Authority has revamped their website by extending their range of coverage and currently has movers listings in all 50 states. Moving Authority has just added 735 new counties so hyper-targeted searches for movers are even easier; just in time for the start of moving season in May.

Las Vegas, Nevada (PRWEB) April 27, 2016 -- Moving Season is almost here as May is approaching fast. Moving Authority has recently revamped their website to make sure that they literally have America covered when it comes to finding reliable and licensed movers. Moving Authority has made it their goal to extend their range of coverage on the map and currently has listings in all 50 states. That's right, even in Alaska and Hawaii.

Searching blindly by looking for movers in an average search engine can turn out to be difficult depending on where a person lives. The results will vary from being quite limited if someone is located in a remote part of the country or overwhelming and flooded with too many options if the search is for a major metropolitan area. This can make it hard to know which company to choose and most importantly which company to trust.

Moving Authority makes sure to filter through all movers that are licensed and reliable which can be found in their search by state moving tool. To make sure that more American families can be kept safe from unlicensed and fraudulent movers, Moving Authority revamped their listings in time for Moving Season to offer even hyper-targeted listing for areas that can sometime be more difficult to find coverage in. The ultimate goal when someone is searching for 'find movers near me' on the web is to find the best and most reliable options available. Moving Authority has made this possible by recently adding 735 new counties to their database and is actively reviewing new movers every day. Moving Authority wants to make sure their listings are up to date and forever expanding.

Moving Authority strives to be the best resource to find licensed movers no matter where anyone lives from the ports of Maine to beaches of Maui, Hawaii.
