

Auto Buying Consulting Service Gains Popularity Among U.S. Consumers

AutoDiscover has introduced a new alternative to the traditional car buying experience

(PRWEB) September 5, 2002 -- Buying a car today is nothing like what it was a few decades ago. Thanks to the advent of the Internet, today's car buyers are far better educated and informed about every aspect of the form and function of the car of their choice. But they are also shorter on the time required to shop for the right car at the right price. AutoDiscover has come up with the perfect solution.

AutoDiscover's team of experienced consultants offer a highly personalized selection and shopping service to car buyers and guarantee the best possible price below the dealer's true invoice.

Each of our clients is assigned their own personal auto consultant who will not only assist in the selection of the right car, but will search for and find the exact match and secure the best price possible.

Today savvy consumers can often negotiate a fair price with the showroom sales staff, but they are still not getting the best possible price for the car of their choice, says Mr. Ali Moazami, president of AutoDiscover. Group buying power allows us to work directly with the dealer's fleet sales manager, guaranteeing the lowest prices possible. Our clients also save a lot of time avoiding the traditional showroom buying experience.

AutoDiscover also offers its clients an on-line newsletter that keeps them up to date on rebates, dealer incentives, car safety and general consumer information. Consumers in the U.S. can subscribe to the newsletter by visiting <http://www.autodiscover.com>, or by calling (201) 741-2841.

AutoDiscover's services are available for a small initial fee and a nominal percentage of the car's negotiated price.
