

Monder Law Group Analyzes California Criminal DUI Arrests & Ridesharing

Exploring the Connection Between California DUI Arrest Rates, the Evolution of the Ridesharing Industry, and the California DUI Criminal Profile.

San Diego, CA (PRWEB) September 14, 2016 -- The Monder Law Group, a leader in California criminal defense services, recently published an analysis of California DUI arrest data in relation to the growth of the ridesharing industry. The Monder Law Group fully supports the ridesharing industry and hopes the analysis will motivate industry leaders, California lawmakers, and businesses to collaborate and explore ways in which they can have an even greater impact on reducing California DUI arrest rates and DUI repeat offenders.

As state lawmakers struggle to outline regulatory jurisdictions, insurance requirements, prevent redlining, and improve worker and rider protections, it's easy to lose sight of the big-picture benefits of the ridesharing industry. "Now that Google is set to launch Waze Carpool in San Francisco, lawmakers and businesses must not stand in the way of ridesharing companies who can help keep impaired drivers off of the roadways," said Attorney Vik Monder. He added, "As the technology develops and grows, the ridesharing industry is set to reach the largest segment of the population who are most likely to be arrested."

Monder Law Group's analysis presents California DUI arrest data from 2008 - 2013, the years surrounding the launch of Uber & Lyft in California. Uber has released several studies claiming that it reduces DUI rates, but there are very few non-branded studies available. The Monder Law article examines unbiased DUI arrest data from the Department of Motor Vehicles, demographic data, California DUI prevention efforts, the latest news and technology advancements from ridesharing companies, and makes a case for the positive impact of ridesharing and reducing the number of impaired drivers on California roadways.

Over the years, Monder Law Group has placed value on serving their local community and serving as leaders within a variety of enrichment organizations. As the state works to regulate the ridesharing industry, the law firm hopes to serve as a voice to encourage lawmakers to position California as an ally and leader to the rideshare industry as it grows.
