

Making friends with Motorflirt

A cheeky service that enables users to flirt with each other via sms and email using car number plates or usernames. Its safe and secure. Your personal details are never revealed to any other users.

(PRWEB) November 1, 2003 -- Picture the scene - you are sitting in a traffic jam and have just seen the woman of your dreams in the car next to you. Your eyes meet hers and you can't believe your luck - she is smiling at you and even gives you a wink! But then fate deals a cruel blow - her lane starts moving and before you know it she's gone - disappearing down the fast lane and taking your dreams with her.

Motorflirt is a service that enables people to contact each other safely and anonymously via their car registrations or usernames by text or email. Membership is free, and users can enter their personal details onto the "Your Profile" section of the website so that other members can find out more about each other. Whilst the emphasis of the service is primarily fun, safety is a high priority, so the system will only disclose a person's username or car number plate. And if you do receive a message from someone and you don't want to hear from them again, you can block the user on your profile.

Messages sent prior to a person signing up to motorflirt will be stored pending them becoming members. Text messages cost 25p and emails are free.

Log on www.motorflirt.com and start having fun.
