

TruckPro Selects IRMS Warehouse Management System to Enhance Core Warehouse Operations and Improve Customer Service

(PRWEB) November 19, 2003 -- Downers Grove, IL (PRWEB) November 18, 2003 Â□ Integrated Warehousing Solutions, LLC, a leading provider of supply chain execution solutions, announced today that TruckPro has selected the IRMS Warehouse Management System to automate its warehouse operations and expand customer services. TruckPro distributes heavy duty truck parts across the United States to national and regional truck fleets, independent truck operators, and independent repair shops.

The IRMS system will automate inventory operations at TruckPro including receiving, putaway, picking, packing, shipping, and core processing at the company's warehouse facility in Memphis, Tennessee. The addition of the IRMS Warehouse Management System will allow TruckPro to offer more services and improve operational efficiency with total control over product movement and detailed, timely reporting of all activities. These include such things as improved customer service, higher inventory accuracy, and increased velocity in order throughput, as well as simplified core processing and identification.

"The ability to maintain a real-time view of our operations is important to TruckPro," explained Mick Baird, CEO. "The IRMS system will allow us to react even faster to our customersÂ□ ever changing requirements and provide them with the best level of customer service in the industry.Â□

Â□TruckPro has a long reputation of successful service to its clients and we look forward to helping them enhance their capabilities and achieve their stated goals, including improved accuracy and efficiency in inventory, store shipments and core processing" said Carl Brewer, President of IWS. "We are proud to add TruckPro to our growing list of customers."
