Atlanta, GA (PRWEB) January 06, 2014 -- The development of diesel engines by U.S. automakers has increased consumer demand for diesel powered vehicles over the past five years. The Cruze built by GM for its Chevy inventory is one of the first sedans to feature a clean diesel motor. The Got Engines company is now selling used Chevy Cruze diesel engine inventory with a new discount price at <http://www.gotengines.com/chevrolet/rebuilt-chevy-engines.html>.

These 2.0 motors are part of the available diesel inventory now discounted online. The GM discount applied to these motors is an internally created price structure for Got Engines buyers. New providers of replacement engines are currently used to acquire all non-gasoline engine builds that are featured for sale online.

The Cruze motors pricing is one example of the enhancements made to the GM inventory this year. The gasoline Ecotec 2.2 editions were recently discounted in price as a way to introduce better pricing for the new year. These reductions in price are expected to continue through the course of 2014.

"The diesel motors currently produced by General Motors for its sedan and subcompact vehicles is helping to create more fuel efficiency for cost conscience vehicle owners," a source from the GotEngines.com company said.

A warranty program was introduced for all Got Engines shipped motors towards the end of 2013 to supply an extra layer of buyer protection. These warranty programs are available for the 2.0 diesel Cruze engines as well as other engines that are acquired this year. The length of coverage for each policy is now up to 36 months.

"The engines that are available on the company website each feature independent OEM parts coverage available for all buyers who are concerned with quality issues after engine installations," the source confirmed.

The GotEngines.com engines that are currently supplied in the North American market are now shipped without additional freight charges. This elimination of the cost for shipping engines from coast-to-coast is the start of new shipment policies for the new year.
