

Driving Safety is a Featured Topic on "Voices In America" for Public Television, with Host James Earl Jones

The importance of driving safety is discussed with experts on new segment...

(PRWEB) December 02, 2015 -- Creators of the program are hoping consumers will benefit from watching an upcoming episode of "Voices In America" that will delve into the topic of driving safety. This is one of the most important yet often neglected topics in contemporary society. Most Americans get behind the wheel at least one time per day to go to work, school or social events. Yet many of us no longer have a concrete understanding of the laws that govern our roads.

James Earl Jones, one of America's most accomplished actors and voice over specialists, will host this special episode of "Voices In America". Even those who consider themselves to be elite drivers can benefit from watching this driving safety episode. The program will outline the frequency of driving accidents in America. It will then explain how most of these accidents can be prevented. A large part of the problem with our increasingly dangerous roadways is the fact that too many Americans are driving while distracted. The emergence of mobile technology has made it possible for drivers to multitask with cell phones, portable games, tablets and other electronic devices while driving. Various experts will discuss these trends.

This episode of "Voices In America" will also take a look at the importance of participating in driving courses every couple of years. Such a course can be taken in-person in a classroom or at home on a web-connected computer. The piece will tap into the knowledge base of automotive safety experts and the abundance of statistics concerning accidents in an attempt to explain the ever-growing importance of these driving courses.

"Voices In America" is not distributed, produced by, or related to PBS or APT in any way. It is independently developed and distributed.
