

Novelty Outdoor Grill Invented by InventHelp Client (OCC-1170)

A leading invention firm, InventHelp is working to submit the V-TWIN BAR-B-Q to applicable companies for their review.

PITTSBURGH, PA (PRWEB) January 09, 2017 -- Grilled food is a staples at outdoor events like tailgates, barbecues, picnics, camping trips, hunting trips and more. Such activities have become pastimes for families, friends and sporting enthusiasts, and because of that, outdoor grills will remain in demand for years to come.

An inventor from Corona, Calif., has invented the patent-pending V-TWIN BAR-B-Q, a new type of outdoor grill that features an eye-catching design. "I felt that all of the grills and barbecue equipment on the market were generic, and was inspired to invent a more personalized, novel grill," said the inventor. V-TWIN BAR-B-Q is designed to after a motorcycle, and would appeal to outdoor and sporting enthusiasts.

This invention is a conversation piece, attracting all sorts of individuals while also grilling food to perfection. It is portable, easy to use, and durable for years of use.

The original design was submitted to the Orange County office of InventHelp. It is currently available for licensing or sale to manufacturers or marketers.
