PAOLI, Pa. (June 19th, 2019) – Today, Ford Motor Company released official power output figures for the new 2020 Mustang Shelby GT500, revealing a whopping 760 horsepower and 625 lb-ft of torque measured at the crankshaft! Generated from a supercharged 5.2-liter V-8, this makes for the most powerful, and power-dense, factory production Mustang engine Ford has built in their 116-year history.

After months of waiting patiently, AmericanMuscle’s (AM) Justin Dugan reports his findings from FOMOCO as well as additional facts and speculations in today’s episode of AM’s Mustang News.
