

Autotecnica Lights Up The Sport Compact Market With Their New Line of L.E.D Styling Accessories

Autotecnica, a leader in the sport compact automotive accessories market, announced their new line of L.E.D styling accessories today. Ranging from a shark fin antenna to windshield wiper covers, if you want to light it up, Autotecnica can make it happen.

(PRWEB) May 20, 2005 -- Autotecnica, a leader in the sport compact automotive accessories market, announced their new line of L.E.D styling accessories today. Ranging from a shark fin antenna to windshield wiper covers, if you want to light it up, Autotecnica can make it happen.

“In a time when many other companies in the sport compact market are struggling and reducing their product lines, we felt that being a leader in the sport compact aftermarket accessories industry, it was important to show that we are still going strong and working on developing cutting edge products for the industry,” says Alan Kantor, President of Autotecnica. “After researching the market trends and working with the most innovative engineers, we feel this new line of products is right on the mark for what the sport compact enthusiast is looking for.”

The new line of LED styling products include: a shark fin antenna, windshield wiper cover, missile switches, exhaust tips and more. They are easy to install and a quick way to add serious style for a reasonable price. These products are just another option in their already extensive line of accessories ranging from their complete sport compact line to their complete truck accessories line for vehicles both domestic and foreign.
