

New Website Solves Parking Dilemma in Metropolitan Cities while Providing Homeowners with Additional Monthly Income

ParkingDirectory.com is the first and only website providing real-time reservations of residential driveways in metropolitan cities. "I came upon the idea when a friend and I were looking for parking in the Marina District of San Francisco one evening" says Gene Ellis, the creator of ParkingDirectory.com "There was no street parking and only one small parking garage, however there were TONS of empty residential driveways. I knew that if I could create a seamless way for homeowners to rent their driveways without needing face to face to contact with their renters, it would contribute a lot to solving the increasing problem of parking in big cities. It will also reduce the amount of harmful emissions released into the environment by vehicles constantly driving around looking for parking."

San Francisco, CA (PRWEB) July 12, 2004 -- The concept of ParkingDirectory.com is brand new, yet simple. Homeowners register their parking spots on the website and choose a corresponding schedule and rate. They can customize a schedule and rate hourly, daily, nightly, and by the week, month, and year. Once their parking spot has been listed online, it is rented out in real-time via our secure online reservation system and the renter then uses the spot for the allotted amount of time. Once a month, the homeowners will receive the accumulated funds their property has earned.

ParkingDirectory.com is introducing the truly new concept of real-time residential driveway reservations. This will help alleviate the problems that plague parking in metropolitan cities, while providing homeowners with additional monthly income. Our website will also reduce the amount of harmful emissions released into the environment from idling cars.
