

Schneider National Selects PartsRiver's Data Quality Services

Largest truckload carrier in North America to execute parts data quality service solutions

Menlo Park, CA and Green Bay, WI (PRWEB) July 22, 2004 -- PartsRiver, Inc., the leading provider of data quality and analytics services for the transportation equipment industry, today announced that Schneider National, Inc. has selected PartsRiver to power a data cleansing initiative in support of a new maintenance software implementation. PartsRiver will utilize its Pro.Series® offering to analyze, cleanse, standardize, validate and integrate data from numerous sources before loading the information Schneider National's maintenance and work management systems.

"PartsRiver's quality services will provide more accurate parts information within our maintenance network which will increase our mechanics' productivity, improve our ability to purchase parts from vendors, and put our equipment and drivers into service faster," said Tom Culver Vice President of Maintenance Operations for Schneider National, Inc. "PartsRiver's knowledge, data, system capacity and proprietary matching technologies will provide significant reduction of redundant part numbers and most importantly, parts spending.

"PartsRiver is committed to delivering world class solutions that address the inefficiencies in our supply chain," said Elisa Jagerson, PartsRiver's CEO. "Leading companies like Schneider are looking for innovative, easy to implement solutions that provide advanced asset optimization and bottom line results. Our solutions, coupled with our award winning technologies, are delivered to help reduce the risk and control the complexities associated with data management. Because the success of any software system depends on the integrity of the data underneath it, PartsRiver's services leverage these investments to maximize the return for our clients."
