(PRWEB) October 16, 2004 -- Gone are the days of waiting for a moving estimate. There's also no need to wonder where your stuff is or when it will arrive at its final destination after it's loaded into the moving truck. Relocation specialists Humboldt Storage and Moving of Canton, Mass., have equipped their Relocation Consultants with Palm Pilots and their transportation fleet with global positioning systems (GPS) to facilitate moving estimates and "real time" position of moving trucks.

Humboldt Storage and Moving, Boston's largest United Van Lines agent has recently installed GPS in their vehicles. GPS uses receivers to monitor truck location at all times. This allows Humboldt's dispatch, relocation coordinators and customer care specialists to track and trace every vehicle in every move.

"With GPS, we have a greater accountability of timelines and we can inform the client exactly where the truck is and provide a pretty accurate time of arrival," noted DArcy Goldman, president of Humboldt Storage and Moving.

Humboldt Storage and Moving is no stranger to the use of technology as they move through the 21st century. In addition to their GPS-equipped fleet, the company's Relocation Consultants are outfitted with Palm Pilots, which allow them to provide an instant, on-premise estimate to potential customers.

Goldman continued, "The moving industry is extremely competitive. We strive to provide the highest level of service to our clients and investing in technology such as GPS and Palm Pilots enable us to meet that goal. It also sets us apart from other relocation companies."
