

TruckNet Launches New Job Board for the Trucking Industry TruckingJobs.com

TruckingJobs.com is a new job board specializing in executive, management, administrative and local driving jobs for the trucking industry.

Lebanon, MO (PRWEB) October 1, 2004 -- After serving drivers and driver recruiters for nearly a decade, TruckNet has rolled out a new type of job board service to enhance its offering to trucking companies and job seekers. TruckingJobs.com is an online specialized service designed for executive, management, administrative and local driving type jobs in the trucking industry. Employers can post and manage open requisitions by purchasing credits through a secure online user account.

TruckNet Recruiting Solutions has been a solid driver recruitment program for almost ten years now, says TruckNet CEO Craig Zwiener. But, we've had numerous requests from non-driving recruiting firms to deliver a resume style board for other trucking professional positions. With this new board, we deliver a new solution to HR departments within the trucking and logistics industry.

A typical trucking company may buy one, ten or one hundred job postings at a time by using a company credit card or a one time invoice. The job posting credits are valid for up to six months.

We are offering a truly self-service job board, said Zwiener. We are excited about this new service offering and what it will do for our existing customers by leveraging the TruckNet web traffic and making it easier to fill non-driving positions.

TruckingJobs.com is officially open for business on October 1st and will offer discounts to the first twenty-five employers that sign up.
