

Racing Fans Have New Opportunities to Brush With Fame - New Book Explains How to Get Autographs Without Leaving Home

As you might already be aware, racing fans are a dedicated bunch. Many travel far and wide to see a race, hoping to brush up with their favorite drivers or catch an autograph.

Indianapolis, IN (PRWEB) January 26, 2005 -- It was this same dedication that drove Brian Ludlow to write his new book, "How to Collect Racing Autographs by Mail: A Proven System for the Racing Enthusiast."

Ludlow's second work, this book is an essential guide for the true racing fan. Aside from telling readers, step-by-step, how to go about getting big-name racing autographs through the mail, it also includes lists of past champions, rookies of the year, racing winners, birthdays, racing terminology, Hall of Fame inductees, and a section on the meaning of the flags used in racing.

"I've always had a passion for racing, even as a kid," says Ludlow. "I guess living in Indianapolis has only fired me up even more. I wanted to give racing fans an outlet, and some options they may not know they have. The book is my way of contributing to a sport I love, and helping others collect memorabilia they'll keep forever.

In "How to Collect Racing Autographs by Mail," Ludlow also provides racing fans with a single, all-inclusive source for obtaining autographs from current and former racing greats, accessing a compiled list of racing-related addresses, creating an autograph request letter, and more.

"How to Collect Racing Autographs by Mail: A Proven System for the Racing Enthusiast" gives racing fans simple, complete, step- by-step instructions for assembling a collection of autographs and other memorabilia that they will treasure the rest of their lives.
