

Fansfueller goes Xtreme

The fansfueller project, the first of its kind in Europe, which aims to run a Top Fuel Dragster in the FIA championship in 2005 funded by drag racing fans rather than traditional sponsorship, is the latest addition to the Xtreme Wheels International Show at London's Alexandra Palace over the weekend of the 19th and 20th of Feb.

(PRWEB) February 17, 2005 -- Barry Sheavills and the Fansfueller team will be promoting the fansfueller project from the Santa Pod Raceway stand at Xtreme Wheels.

This will be the last chance to meet the team and make a pledge in person to become a founder fansfueller member.

The team will have a great prize of a £1000 pound voucher towards a set of wheels and tyres to give away to a lucky fansfueller supporter at the show. The prize was kindly donated by fansfueller corporate partners AEZ and the lucky winner will be able to collect their wheels through any branch of Motorworld.

There may also be a sneak preview of the fansfueller Top Fuel Simulator which the team are hoping to have at events this summer. Fansfueller project team member Chris Parker said "This will be a great opportunity for adults and kids alike to get an idea of what its really like to drive and tune a Top Fuel Dragster and will be just one of the unique benefits that we will be offering our members. If we have the software ready for Xtreme Wheels we are hoping that fans will be able to see Barry make a few runs and maybe challenge arch rival Andy Carter to a pre-season match race."

For those not able to Xtreme Wheels this weekend, the fansfueller web site at www.fansfueller.co.uk has been updated with all the latest news, and a report from Alexandra Palace will be posted sometime next week.

You can find out all about Xtreme Wheels International including ticket prices on the Show's official web site at www.xwishow.com
