

Celebrities Have Greenfeet at the Oscars

Celebrity participants in "RedCarpet - Green Cars" receive gifts of appreciation from greenfeet.com.

Chico, CA (PRWEB) February 23, 2005 -- What do Academy Award winner Charlize Theron, Leonardo DiCaprio and Orlando Bloom have in common? They're all participants in this year's "Red Carpet & Green Cars" fundraiser for Global Green U.S.A. and recipients of a hearty "thank you" from Greenfeet.com. As Founder and President of Greenfeet.com, Valerie Reddemann states "We believe that 'Well done is better than well said'. We appreciate the action that these celebrities take to show that leaving softer, greener footprints on the earth is hip and downright cool".

This year's sustainability event is better than ever. 20 of Hollywood's A-listers are set to arrive at the Oscars in chauffeur-driven Toyota Prius hybrid vehicles instead of the customary gas-guzzling limos. Acting as representatives in the "drive" for global sustainability, this year participants of the "Red Carpet & Green Cars" event will include veterans Susan Sarandon, Tim Robbins, and Robin Williams, as well as some new faces consisting of: Selma Hayak, Penelope Cruz, Layra Linney, and best actor nominee Leonardo DiCaprio to name a few.

Following the big event Greenfeet will be thanking celebrities for a job well done with picnic baskets overflowing with eco-friendly goods available at www.greenfeet.com assembled to encourage reflection on their contributions to a cleaner, healthier world.

Gorgeous recycled glass wine goblets from Fire and Light, hemp napkins from Ecolution, and beautiful, disposable bamboo plates from Bambu (voted one of Fortune's top 25 products of the year) are included. Top it off with a Klean Kanteen stainless steel water bottle to ensure pure water from filter to mouth, and Karma Coaching Cards to promote positivity and awareness. To round out the basket, Greenfeet will also be including chocolate covered almonds and an award winning bottle of organic wine both local to Chico, CA.

Greenfeet is the bricks and clicks consumer source for a fresh mix of eco-friendly goods for self, home and garden.
