Internet marketing firm based on Long Island, has recently released it's final version of a full featured automotive classifieds service that will change the way Long Islanders search for new and used cars right here on Long Island.

(PRWEB) March 6, 2005 -- Searchen Networks Inc., an Internet marketing firm based on Long Island, has recently released it's final version of a full featured automotive classifieds service that will change the way Long Islanders search for new and used cars right here on Long Island.

The debut of Long Island Auto Find, accessible on the Internet at www.liautofind.com, offers a sophisticated interface for buyers and sellers to not only find an automobile, but users of the service can communicate and post feedback to rate experiences from previous transactions, similar to the features offered on major global services like ebay.com and sell.com.

Unlike any service of it's kind, it is completely free for private buyers and sellers. Registered users can list full descriptions and multiple images of their personal car, truck or SUV for sale with the benefit of added keywords and search capability with no cost or obligation whatsoever.

Searchen Networks Inc., a parent company to LongIslandExchange.com, will continue to release similar products in our efforts to keep the Internet a free informational resource as it was intended to be.

We hope you enjoy Long Island Auto Find and everything it has to offer.
