Dallas, TX (PRWEB) March 16, 2005 -- On April 8,2005 First Annual Adrianna Clemens Fundraiser Firewheel Golf Tournament /Ceremony/ Live and Silent Auction with Special Guest: Janette Fennell Founder of Kid and Cars

Rachel Clemens wants everyone to know her two year old daughter, Adrianna, would be alive today if their SUV had back-up car sensors. Â We were celebrating our seven-year old sonÂ s birthday party the day of when my husband backed out of the garage,Â  the grieving mother recalls tearfully. Â In a matter of seconds, he had run over our baby girl Adrianna. Her death could have been avoided if our SUV had been equipped with car back-up sensors or a television monitor.Â 

In the weeks following her daughterÂ s death on October 9th, Ms. Clemens has learned at least two children die every week due to similar accidents Â  deaths that could have been avoided if every car were equipped with back-up warning sensors. Â The irony is that it costs less than $70 for automakers to install a sensor device in the factory. That is a small price to pay for the lives of children to be saved every year,Â  Ms. Clemens says.

According to Consumer Union, recent polls reveal that 8 in 10 Americans want more car-safety regulations to protect children. Currently, vehicles have blind spots of 13Â  to 51Â , depending on their size. Even a cluster of children can stand behind a vehicle undetected.

Therefore, Rachel Clemens is proposing a new rule, Â AdriannaÂ s RuleÂ , asking the U.S. Department of Transportation to make car sensors mandatory.
