

Smeding's New Ford Stroker Crate Engine Produces 460 Horsepower

Low-Maintenance Ford 392 stroker engine offers reliable, turnkey performance.

Rancho Cordova, CA (PRWEB) July 15, 2005 -- Smeding Performance introduces the Ford 392 crate engine. This reliable, low-maintenance stroker crate engine produces 460 horsepower. With the torque only a stroker can produce, it's easy to get the power and reliability you crave all with a great sound.

This Smeding engine is not a rebuild. It features a brand-new Ford SVO Sportsman II block and all-new top-quality components from top to bottom.

The Smeding Ford 392 boasts such premium parts as full roller valve gear, specially modified Edelbrock Performer RPM cylinder heads with 2.02/1.60 valves, an Edelbrock RPM Air Gap intake manifold, a nodular-iron crankshaft, 4130 Forged I Beam with 3/8" ARP WaveLoc™ Bolts 5.956" connecting rods, hypereutectic pistons and low friction single moly rings.

Smeding's 392 crate engine is perfect for those who want more power without sacrificing durability. For instance, it features 9.8:1 compression, so it can run all day long on pump gas with no problems. Plus, to reduce maintenance demands, Smeding uses a hydraulic roller camshaft. There's no valve lash to set, so vehicle owners can treat this engine just like the one in a brand-new vehicle. The street performance engine spins to a maximum rpm of 6,000. It even comes with a two-year warranty and additional upgrade options are available.

Smeding sells the Ford 392 stroker crate engine for $6,495. Plus, the company will ship this engine anywhere in the continental U.S. for just $160.
