

Fresh Author Tells Tragic Story

(PRWEB) May 8, 2005 -- A plaque hangs in the School of Nursing at Valparaiso University commemorating three nursing students who died in a car crash returning from their last clinical rotation in February, 1994. One of those students was Jill Rosko, 21-years-old and a college junior. Another plaque hangs in the Phi Kappa Theta fraternity house at Purdue University in memory of Jeff Rosko, killed while he was standing in a video store as a van driven by a 9-year-old girl plunged through the window, killing him instantly. Jeff died in February of 1999, and like Jill, he was 21-years-old and a college junior. Jeff and Jill were sister and brother, the only children of Tom and Janet Rosko.

It is perhaps possible to imagine the grief and devastation parents endure when a child dies — but to happen twice? With great courage, Janet and Tom Rosko detailed their story of love, loss, and ultimate survival to author Renee — Kimberling over the course of almost two years. The book, No Words, is now available nationwide.

— This project has not been an easy journey for Tom and Janet, — states Ms. Kimberling. — They have opened their lives and shared their immense tragedies, seeking to help others survive devastating loss and grief. They have taught me with perfect clarity that love never dies. —

The Kingston Review states, — Renee Kimberling provides an insightful look into personal discovery and intrigue. Amazing story of revelation and human drama. — Ms. Kimberling — is a fresh new writer who writes with passion and drama — according to Bell Express and Outlook. Four Lanes and Lloyd Express write, — A good read, but incredible. It is truly amazing what people have the ability to do. —

The book is published by GMA Publishing/Milo House Press and distributed by Ingram Book group, retailing for $15.00. It is also available on Barnes and Noble.com and Amazon.com. For more information, contact the author at rramerican@netnitco.net.
