

Hank Young Uses Roadmax Transmissions for His Latest Custom Bike Builds

For his latest motorcycle project Hank Young of Young Choppers & Hot Rods, Inc. picked a Roadmax transmission to debut on his latest creation.

(PRWEB) May 18, 2005 -- Hank Young, President of Young Choppers & Hot Rods, Inc. builds custom motorcycle projects in any stage, from ground up customizations to specialized adaptations and fitments. For his latest motorcycle project Young picked a Roadmax transmission to debut on his latest creation.

“I’m using a Roadmax right side drive supplied by Bob Kay of Biker Pros for a project that Micheal Lichter is putting together at the Journey Museum, It will coincide with the 2005 Black Hills Motorcycle Rally in Sturgis,” said Young. “This motorcycle has a similar look to the Bonneville Salt Flats racers of yesterday.”

Micheal Lichter, a world renowned motorcycle photographer, is creating an exhibition that is called Speed Demon. Lichter has collected a group of race-inspired motorcycles for the showcase.

The Bonneville project features a 120CI Harmon Motor manufactured by John Harmon in the 1980’s. This motor is a prototype based on a shovel-head design with dual carburetors. The style of the bike will be long and low with an aerodynamic design.

“We are excited to be a part of this project with Hank Young,” stated Bob Kay, President, Biker Pros. “Hank (Young) is so enthusiastic about the Roadmax products that he is building two other custom motorcycles with Roadmax transmissions concurrently with his Bonneville project.”

About Hank Young

Young Choppers & Hot Rods, Inc. supplies creativity, quality engineering and attention to detail to transform steel and aluminum into unique pieces of two wheel artistry. Using in-house frame jig and a CNC machine shop, Young Choppers & Hot Rods utilizes the latest technology to build the stripped-down choppers and hot rods of yesteryear.

About The Journey Museum

The Journey Museum serves as a forum to preserve and explore the heritage and culture of the Black Hills region and the knowledge of its natural environment so both residents and visitors can understand the values of our past, enrich our present and meet the challenges of the future.

About Roadmax Transmissions

Roadmax transmissions are designed for OEM replacement and kit bikes, as well as high-performance and wide-tire applications. Roadmax transmissions are thoroughly tested and have passed a rigorous pre-delivery inspection.

The Roadmax product line includes six-speed conversion kits and OEM-style replacement transmissions for Dyna, FXR and Softail models as well as transmissions for right side applications. On most models consumers have the option of selecting black wrinkle, polished or chrome casings.
