TixNix.com, an online service that lets motorists and truckers fight any speeding or moving violation through the Web, now offers service to NY and NJ drivers

New York (PRWEB) July 6, 2005 -- TixNix.com, a service that lets motorists and truckers fight speeding tickets and other traffic violations through the Web, is now available for New York and New Jersey motorists.

By giving each driver who uses the site a free consultation with an experienced traffic lawyer, TixNix.com helps these motorists keep their records clean and their insurance rates lower.

“Unfortunately, motorists in New York and New Jersey drive on some of the nation's highest ticketed roadways,” says Steve Ehrenreich, CEO and co-founder of TixNix.com. “Because of this, they account for a large percentage of the tickets issued annually in the United States. Many of these violations can be easily dismissed or reduced in court – but often, a driver needs the help of an experienced traffic attorney to win.”

TixNix.com helps these drivers beat New York and New Jersey traffic tickets. When a driver visits TixNix.com, a simple-to-use system takes all the information from their speeding ticket or violation and transmits it directly to an experienced traffic lawyer familiar with the county or city where the driver received the offense.

“Because most of the information gathering is now done through the Internet, TixNix.com lawyers are able to free their time to give free advice to every motorist who visits TixNix.com,” says Ehrenreich. “They can advise a driver whether to pay the fine, take a defensive driving course or hire them to represent them in traffic court.”

If a driver chooses to hire a TixNix.com attorney, the entire process is managed through the TixNix.com Website. “Almost all of our clients can fight their tickets from the comfort of their home. They never have to step foot in a courthouse – TixNix.com attorneys do everything for them,” says Ehrenreich.
