(PRWEB) July 7, 2005 -- What were once simple $\hat{A} \Box$ boxes $\hat{A} \Box$ sitting on top of or stowed under desks in corporate and home offices, desktop computers are now available in all shapes and sizes. Thanks in large part to Apple $\hat{A} \Box$ s iMac (NYSE: Appl), computers are becoming fashion statements as more manufacturers are getting into the design game.

Combining a love of luxury cars with the geek that is in all of us, Compucar, LLC, (compucarllc.com) parks powerful desktop computers styled in the shape of your favorite Mercedes, Lexus, and Corvette on your desk. JustLuxe (www.justluxe.com), a luxury website, recognizes Compucar s design team for enhancing both home and office living environs.

These computer-cars save space and enhance your office aesthetic. Not to mention your office will be the new hub of attention with everyone trekking to your office to drool over your new Vette. Compucar is off to a fast start, and the entrepreneurial team of Aaron Davis, Dennis Helms, and Rick Johns bring more than 30 years of computer-related experience. Each Compucar boasts a footprint 1/3 the size of a normal desktop, housing Pentium 4 processors, DVD, 1 Gig RAM, 2 USB ports, and other standard equipment. TEAM DUZE airbrushes each car with deep, rich, vibrant paints.

All of this is why JustLuxe (www.justluxe.com) recognizes this team of entrepreneurs for the quality built in to each unique computer-car. Compucar (www.compucarllc.com) emphasizes these vehicles are not for everyone, so $don\hat{A}\Box t$ expect to see these speedsters shipped to big box warehouse stores.

Other available models include Escalades, M5, AMG, Trans Am, LS450 and the Corvette. All must be special ordered to your $CPU\hat{A} \square s$ specifications. The stylized exteriors scream speed all the while the insides are kept in-tune by what you $\hat{A} \square ve$ installed under the hood. Those not influenced by our hot rod culture, tuck-n-roll refinements and visual characteristics need apply.

Living the life of affordable luxury is there for all to achieve. Let's celebrate this team for living their dreams.
