(PRWEB) July 23, 2005 -- RVShark.com, the world's most-trusted online RV park guide, has begun publishing RVer-written reviews of RV parks located in the state of Maine. The first RV campground covered in Maine is the Vacationland Campground in Harrison, located approximately forty miles northwest of Portland.

A recent visitor to the Vacationland Campground described it as a "well maintained campground," with "activities for the kids" on "most days." But folks aren't "allowed to make any noise after 10 PM," leaving campfire pals "unable to talk in a normal tone." RVShark.com's complete review of the Vacationland Campground can be found at <http://www.rvshark.com>.

With the Maine addition, RVShark.com now features reviews of RV parks located in thirty-two U.S. states. In addition, RVShark.com features an RV parks for sale section. In May, a multi-million dollar Florida RV park sold for its full asking price within twenty-five days of being listed for sale on RVShark.com.

RVShark.com collects, screens, and publishes unbiased RV park reviews written by real RVers. The site publishes a submitted review only after it has been thoroughly researched and authenticated. RVShark.com discards well over half of all incoming contributions as either insufficient or invalid. The site may be viewed free of charge at the www.rvshark.com Internet address.

Neither RVShark.com nor its parent SharkPage is affiliated with any of the aforementioned RV parks.
