Green Racing News

Two classic summer races have demonstrated recent advance in new greener racing technologies. Audi won the Lemans 24 Hours with the latest version of their hybrid diesel. And for next year's LeMans, Nissan unleashed the ZEOD RC (Zero Emission On Demand Racing Car), which will be the world's fastest EV racer at the Le Mans 24 Hours. It can supposedly race past 185.

The ZEOD RC didn't initially have a spot in the Le Mans 24 Hours race. Nissan received an invitation for the ZEOD RC for the Automobile Club de l'Ouest's "Garage 56" spot, which is an additional spot for cars that display extreme performance and advanced technology. Obviously this car is based on the Deltawing project of last year, which is now competing regularly in the ALMS series in America, with a combustion engine.

Earlier last month, the land speed record for an electric vehicle was broken by the Drayson Racing Technology Lola B12/69, which hit a top speed of 204.2 mph. The previous record was 175 mph, set in 1974.

Meanwhile at the Pikes Peak Hillclimb in June, the electric power record was broken by Nobuhiro "Monster" Tajima in his E-Runner Special.

He broke his on record in beating OVER 20 other electric vehicles.

All of this lets us look into the future of racing as it adapts to a new greener environment.

"New" Pikes Peak

This was the first year that the entire course for the Pikes Peak Hillclimb was paved, as the last dirt sections are gone. So it was anticipated that the old records would be broken. Sébastien Loeb and the Peugeot 208 T16 Pikes Peak shattered the previous record with a breath-taking time of 8m13.878s. The Frenchman negotiated the 20 kilometers and 156 corners of the mountain at an average speed of 145kph. Loeb's time blitzed the previous best of 9m46.164s, set by Rhys Millen last year, with the top three finishers all beating the 2012 record

Most Expensive Car ever Sold at Auction

A 1954 Mercedes Benz Formula One racer just became the most expensive car ever sold at auction. Bonham's, the auctioneer, confirms that it brought the hammer down on the Mercedes Benz W196R at $26.45 million. That tops the previous record for the most expensive car sold at auction, a 1957 Ferrari 250 Testa Rossa Prototype, sold for $16.39 million at Gooding &

The famous race car driver Juan Manuel Fangio drove the Mercedes W196 to victory in two Formula One races—the 1954 German and Swiss Grands Prix. The car also had a great history, with well-documented ownership over the past half-century and very few major changes or modifications to the car. It raced in five World Championship-qualifying Grand Prix races before it was retired from the Mercedes racing team at the end of 1955. The car was then prepped to full race standard and consigned to the Daimler-Benz Museum on Dec. 22, 1955.

In June 1965, it was exhibited in Munich, and during 1966 it was shown at both Le Mans in France and Hockenheim in Germany. It then appeared at the 1967 British Grand Prix at Silverstone, before being run in a test at the Untertürkheim factory test-track, and displayed in Berlin. In November 1967, it was exhibited at Stuttgart University.

On May 22, 1973, Mercedes-Benz officially presented it to the National Motor Museum in Beaulieu, Hampshire, England. But in the 1980s, the car was sold into private hands and preserved for years in a warehouse.

The Return of Datsun

The Datsun is back! Nissan's storied brand was killed off in the 1980s, but last year the company first began speaking of its return as a low-cost option for emerging markets. Here is the first look the sub-$7,000 Datsun Go, launched in India, which will go on sale in India, Indonesia, Russia and South Africa next year

The car will cost less than 400,000 rupees ($6,680).. The GO is a five-door hatchback with a manual transmission, and is powered by a 1.2-liter engine. The car is less than four meters long, which means it qualifies for a lower 12% excise tax in India.

Ed: my first new car was a Datsun 210 Sedan, a 1.1 liter stripped down mileage special for about $4,800. It did get the promised 58 mpg on the highway, at the expense of carpeting, air conditioning and any other comfort features.

MEDIA

ESPN and Turner Sports won't broadcast NASCAR races after next season. NASCAR had more than three decades of relationships with both networks. NASCAR plans to announce a new rights deal with NBC for the second half of the Sprint Cup and Nationwide Series seasons -- a package that previously had been held by ESPN. Beginning in 2015, NBC will share NASCAR coverage with Fox, which signed an extension with NASCAR last year.

Sources say Turner's package of six Sprint Cup races, as well as the first half of the Nationwide Series, remain available. Fox is considered a likely bidder for both packages.

NBC's broadcast plans are not known, but sources say the network had been pitching NASCAR on returning the Sprint Cup series to broadcast TV and could air races on Sunday afternoons on NBC prior to its "Sunday Night Football" broadcast. It also offered a chance to cross-promote NASCAR with the Olympics.

SPEED TV GOES OFF AIR 8/17

Speed TV changes to Fox Sports 1 this month. There will still be racing coverage but it will not be automotive only.

IPMS News

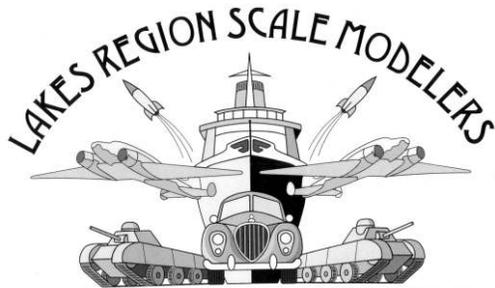

GTR is a local chapter of IPMS/USA, in Region 5. Local chapters need five active national IPMS/USA members to remain an IPMS chapter. We had enough National IPMS members this time, but we can use some more. So we urge those who have lapsed to renew their IPMS/USA membership, or if you have never been a member enroll now! Details can be found at their web site, www.ipmsusa.org, or see me for membership forms.

The 2013 IPMS/USA National Convention will be in August in Loveland, CO – see the website at:

We await news of the 2014 IPMS Region 5 Chapter Convention.

NIMCON 2 Event

NIMCON 2

The NIMCON 2 event was held July 13 at McHenry County College in Crystal Lake, IL by our fellow IPMS club Lakes Region Scale Modelers. It was an all category model event, military and figures as well as autos. Most classes were judged with 1st-2nd-3rd awards, the Auto categories were decided by NNL style popular voting.

GTR had a table in the vendor area and a club display, above.

Custom class.

Auto Other Class:

Auto Competition Vehicles

There were a lot of vendors at the show, also Revell and Grex Airbrushes had displays. There was also a raffle.

Turnout was somewhat light, there were about 40 automotive entries. But the newly remodeled facilities were a very nice setting for a show.

Among the Special Awards was the Tim Leicht Memorial Award for Best Mercedes. I was honored to have won it with my Tamiya Mercedes SLR, since Tim was a good friend as well as original founder and past president of GTR, also a long time Lakes Region member. We still miss him greatly.
