New American Motorcycle Brand Featured in AMC's new non-fiction series "Ride with Norman Reedus"

Birmingham, AL (PRWEB) June 24, 2016 -- Motus, the maker of America's only premium brand of sport-touring motorcycles and proprietary V4 engines based in Birmingham, Alabama, is pleased to announce that one of their motorcycles will be featured in a new non-fiction television series titled "Ride with Norman Reedus". The episode featuring Motus airs Sunday, June 26th at 10PM ET on the AMC network.

Audiences will recognize Reedus as Daryl Dixon from AMC's smash hit series "The Walking Dead". Six one-hour episodes will follow Reedus and other notable guests as they hit the open road to explore local motorcycle culture, its history and celebrate some of the best and brightest collectors, mechanics and motorcycle craftsmen around the country. The series is produced by Left/Right Productions.

"Norman is an avid motorcycle enthusiast with millions of fans. We couldn't be more pleased about the Motus MST being selected for this new series on AMC," said Lee Conn, president of Motus. "We're so thankful to Left/Right and AMC for the opportunity to introduce our American-made motorcycles to a whole new audience." The episode featuring Motus will give viewers the chance to see how the motorcycle performs along some the best roads in America. "As far as American motorcycles go, I'd put my money on Motus for being the finest example of pure, un-filtered hot rod adrenaline in the palm of your hand," said Conn.
