

Used 2003 Acura MDX Transmission Added to Import Honda Inventory for Sale at U.S. Transmissions Company Website

Used 2003 Acura MDX transmission is now added for sale online in the Honda inventory at the Got Transmissions company. These MDX units are preowned and available for sale within the USA.

Nashville, TN (PRWEB) January 03, 2014 -- Honda continues to produce its Acura luxury vehicle brand for the global auto market. The Got Transmissions company is announcing its acquisition of used 2003 Acura MDX transmission inventory for sale. These units are now included in the Honda import inventory sold to American buyers at <http://gottransmissions.com/acura-transmissions.html>.

The new arrival on these five-speed automatic transmission assemblies is one strategy used this year to improve the luxury gearbox inventory marketed for sale online. The MDX series is now in its second generation of production and millions of units have been sold contributing to more consumer use in the United States.

The Got Transmissions company website is now updated to reflect the available inventory for luxury Honda transmissions for sale. The automatic inventory of foreign gearboxes currently promoted in the Honda builds online is now equipped with the supplied two-year warranties offered for each buyer.

"There are now several builds from the Honda company featured in our replacement transmissions inventory online with more units scheduled for addition through 2014," said one source at the GotTransmissions.com company.

One disadvantage that some purchasers of used transmission units online experience through some sources is high wear. Because there are no requirements to validate quality before sale, some sellers distribute inventory that is lower in quality to buyers. The Got Transmissions company has changed its acquisitions efforts this year and now specializes in low mileage gearboxes.

"Mileage and age are two of the first elements reviewed by gearbox buyers when considering a purchase and we're now offering above average units for sale," the source included.

The GotTransmissions.com website has recently been enhanced with separate detail pages for foreign transmission units for sale online. These pages are now used as a research source for buyers validating transmission codes, quality levels and warranties coverage before completing an online purchase.
