

Driver Solutions Announces Company-Sponsored CDL Training Programs Available to New Drivers

All predictions for the economy in 2011 point to a strong demand for new truck drivers. Learn more about how Driver Solutions is helping new drivers start a truck driving career through their company-sponsored CDL training program.

Indianapolis, Indiana (Vocus/PRWEB) January 04, 2011 -- Driver Solutions has today announced the availability of high-quality CDL training programs for new truck drivers to ensure they have the skill set required to be successful in this lucrative field. Predictions for a recovering economy in 2011 indicate the demand for new drivers is strong.

Driver Solutions provides unique CDL training programs for new drivers, paid for by trucking companies willing to hire the new drivers. This ensures that new drivers are able to learn all the skills needed to be successful, without having to worry about how to pay for school tuition or taking out a loan. Once the truck driving school course has been completed, the company-sponsored drivers begin well-paying jobs within the trucking industry, cutting out the problematic job search for new drivers.

The trucking industry is one of the fastest growing market segments in the nation, expanding payrolls and continuing to hire new workers. As the economy rebounds from the recent recession, that growth is expected to surge even higher. An increased demand by retailers and manufacturers will be the driving force behind this growth. "2011 is shaping up to be a very active year for truck driver recruiting. We're seeing fleets begin to grow again and starting to see more "driver churn" or turnover of experienced truck drivers. These factors create a tremendous opportunity for new drivers entering the industry," said Mark Kinsel, president of Driver Solutions.

For those considering the trucking industry as a potential career, the time has never been better. However, to ensure they are able to be successful immediately, prospective drivers are urged to take advantage of the company-sponsored CDL training programs offered through Driver Solutions.

New drivers will find that getting started with Driver Solutions is a simple process. Prospective drivers simply need to submit an application online, and then speak with their Driver Agent. The next step is to choose a trucking company partner, and then attend paid truck driving school. After completion of the CDL course, new drivers can start work immediately.

Thanks to the great CDL training programs offered by Driver Solutions, new drivers are able to easily and quickly enter the lucrative trucking industry with significant advantages. Having Driver Solutions as a partner during this process ensures the highest quality of training and the best paying job upon graduation.
