

GM Transmissions Rebuilt for U.S. Sale by Leading Gearbox Rebuilding Company

GM transmissions are now rebuilt for sale in the U.S. by the Powertrain Pros company. These remanufactured units feature automatic and standard edition builds now for sale online.

Lexington, KY (PRWEB) January 15, 2014 -- The auto parts industry is now featuring different technologies that help to enhance the lifespan of used components in the U.S. The Powertrain Pros is one company benefiting from these technologies for its transmission inventory for sale. This company is now offering GM transmissions rebuilt for sale to buyers at <http://powertrainpros.com/gm-transmissions-rebuilt>.

The builds that are now available for domestic sales includes most of the General Motors family of gearboxes used in U.S. motor vehicles. The range of production that is now available for the rebuilt units is between 1980 and 2014. The decision to provide the new inventory available was based on customer requests.

The PowertrainPros.com inventory online has been adjusted to reflect all of the units now for sale to buyers. Some of the units that are now remanufactured includes 4L60E, 4L65E, 4L80, 700R4 and the original turbo hydra-matic builds. Complete pricing for these units is currently distributed through the automated tools now listed online.

"Any interested buyer in our remanufactured GM transmissions can receive immediate access to full purchase price and shipping information using our automated inventory system," said a source at the PowertrainPros.com company.

The GM transmissions currently for sale are mixed with the additional automaker inventory from U.S. automakers that exists in the company warehouse. This inventory includes recent builds from Ford, Dodge and Chrysler to round out the available gearboxes that buyers can select when using the Powertrain Pros company as a provider.

"All of our rebuilt transmissions include two-year warranties inside the U.S. to further extend the lifespan of each gearbox after installation," added the source.

The PowertrainPros.com company has modified its rebuilding facility this year. These modifications have improved the amount of transmissions that can be built for consumer sales. Additional upgrades to the company facility are expected before the close of the year. The customer support line at 1-888-292-8807 is now available as a secondary contact source for transmission buyers.
