

Rhino Off-Road UROC Supercrawl III Contest Winner Ready to Rock!

Jaben Joesting of Grand Lake, Colorado Wins the Grand Prize the Chance to represent Team Rhino in the UROC Supercrawl III.

Las Vegas, NV (PRWEB) October 15, 2004 -- Rhino Off-Road Industries (ROI) today announced the winner of its UROC Supercrawl III "Tame the Rhino" contest. Jaben Joesting arrived in Vegas Monday to tour ROI's headquarters and to start an intensive training in the RTV with Team Rhino for this weekends UROC Supercrawl III event. Jaben will get the chance to test his skills against some of the top drivers in the world.

Jaben who found out about the contest in Peterson's 4wheel & Off-Road online is an avid off-road enthusiast who lives in Grand Lake, Colorado. He is no stranger to off-road competition having competed in many regional events including the UROC Kremmling Krawl.

Howard Pearl President of Rhino Off-Road said, "Jaben's entry clearly captured the spirit of the RTV rider, we feel lucky to have gotten such an experienced and knowledgeable winner, he could definitely do well at Supercrawl III."

Jaben will also receive a custom designed helmet to keep as a trophy as well as be part of the Rhino Off-Road / Rhino Linings Factory team that will also serve as his pit crew for the competition. In addition, he will compete in front of thousands of live spectators at the Supercrawl III event, and be part of a feature on Planet X Television who will be shooting a full feature story for their new TV series, "National Lampoon's Planet X."
